JAB TECHNOLOGIES RELEASE EZBiz E-BUSINESS SERVICE

Jab Technologies ("Jab") has announced today that the company has released its EZBiz self-service e-business, in line with projections contained in the Company's Prospectus which was issued last year pursuant to Jab's Initial Public Offering and listing on the Newcastle Stock Exchange in September 2005.

The EZBiz service is now operational with approximately 120 organisations currently installed onto the system.

More are being added daily. The company expects that EZBiz will appeal to a growing number of organisations seeking effective ways to implement and control internet business initiatives, without the complexity and technical costs typically associated with these types of services.

Jab anticipates that, as worldwide demand for internet based e-business services continues to grow, EZBiz style kiosks will become increasingly popular with the business and consumer markets seeking convenient ways to implement essential e-business applications.

WHAT IS EZBIZ ?

EZBiz (pronounced "Easy-Biz"), is a set of integrated internet products that enable anyone to easily design, launch and operate an internet e-business service.

Typically, these will range from simple information services to more advanced catalogue shopping services.

Specialised services are also catered for such as e-payment gateways, internet marketing, eMail broadcast automation, and full content management

A further two releases of EZBiz are planned for 2006 to cater to the email automation market and the more demanding e-commerce market.

CUSTOMER TRIALS

The EZBiz service currently supports approximately 120 organisations with a further 200 waiting to be installed onto the system. Jab will now expand commercialisation activities in Australia before launching the service off-shore.
