AgriNuture is pleased to announce that its shares were listed on the Philippine Stock Exchange last May 25 by way of introduction.

Agriculture Secretary Arthur Yap rang the opening bell, at 930am, May 25, at the Philippine Stock Exchange, in Tektite Towers, Pasig. He was guest of honor for the listing ceremony.

During the occasion, Mr Antonio Tiu told reporters that “Agriculture as a sector, is recession-proof. We expect the market to embrace [the company] warmly since [the industry] is [the] best choice for investment at the moment.”

There are still no definite plans for an initial public offering (IPO) for ANI, in the Philippines. However, under the rules at the Philippine Stock Exchange, companies are required to go public within 12 months, after they are listed via introduction.
