- ♦ Structural/ stratigraphic drape combination prospect
- ♦ Compliance of amplitude and/or AVO with structural closure at several levels
- ♦ Mean unrisked undiscovered resources estimate: 408 MMbbls

Apalis Prospect AVO Display

- Angle Stacks over 9-1 Apalis were used to look for anomalies consistent with the presence of hydrocarbons as modelled in the nearby S3-1 well.
- Apalis has a strong Class 3-4 anomaly with a large negative Fluid Factor, consistent with presence of hydrocarbons.
- AVO Fluid factor cube highlights reduction in Poisson's Ratio, consistent with HC
- Apalis has a strong AVO anomaly with a large negative Fluid Factor (orange over yellow), consistent with presence of hydrocarbons.

Liberia 8-1 Horst Area Prospect

Liberia Central Fan Area Prospects

- ♦ TC-1+ TC2 combined area up to 100 sq km
- Large high-amplitude fan body within Turonian interval with strong indicators of high net sand presence
- ♦ Clear AVO response with excellent candidate down-dip flatspot/amplitude switch-off
- Depth conversion indicates likely dip closure
- Fast-track 3D dataset had problems in illuminating Central Fan area due to the presence of a poor data zone sweeping across the central area of the fan
- new seismic has provided much better resolution confirming that the original TC_1 and TC_2 prospects are combined into a single, large fan body derived from the east

TC-1 Jacana Turonian Prospect

- → Jacana Prospect will test Turonian sand body with structural and stratigraphic closure
- ♦ Strong AVO response consistent with presence of hydrocarbons
